Delegates to the Democratic county convention found the selection of a legislative ticket rather more of a task than had been anticipated. Eight hours were required yesterday to nominate three candidates for the state senate and ten candidates for the lower house.

Competition for places on the legislative ticket was spirited. Seven candidates were presented for nomination to the state senate and twenty-four for nomination to the lower house. The senatorial ticket was disposed of at the manner of the senatorial ticket was disposed of at the morning session, but the afternoon session ran until 8:30 o'clock in the evening before the ten men were named.

The legislative ticket is well distributed and well balanced. A manifest disposition to be fair to all classes and all sections was displayed and the result was satisfactory. Interest in the nominations for the lower house was so great that nobody considered a proposition to adjourn the afternoon session until the full ticket had been named. The time required to make up the ticket was the subject of much jocular comment during the day and those who had proposed continuing the session of the day before until the ticket was made up were the objects of much good natured criticism.

The afternoon session was enliveneed by an address from Judge O. W. Powers, the candidate for congress, who was in the city for a few hours on his way from the Dixie country to Rich country.

In conclusion Judge Powers said there was room enough in Utah for
